MR. KITCHIN LAST NIGHT.

A STRONG AND CONVINCING SPEECH.

The Brilliant Congressman Enthusiastically Greeted by a Large Crowd--Why Mr. Joyce Avoids a Joint Discussion—Mr. Kitchin Considers the Race Issue Settled—The Issue Plainly Drawn Between McKinleyism and Bryanism—Imperialism Planted in Our Government.

In the court house last night Hon. W. W. Kitchin, Democratic candidate for re-election to the National House of Representatives, addressed a large and intelligent crowd of voters on the issues of the campaign.

The speaker was gracefully introduced by Mr. W. R. Land, who referred to the faithful and able manner in which Mr. Kitchin had represented the people of the Fifth District during his two terms in Congress.

Mr. Kitchin was greeted with applause and was listened to with close attention throughout his entire speech, which was both eloquent and forceful. He discussed the foremost issues of the day in an eloquent and forceful manner, making his arguments remarkably clear and easy of understanding.

In the beginning of his speech he referred to the fact that, since his first nomination, four years ago, he had had the privilege of a joint canvass with but one of his opponents. In 1896 he and Hon. Thomas Settle held joint discussions all over the district, but in 1898 the Republican nominee, Judge Spencer B. Adams, avoided a joint canvass. This year his opponent, Mr. J. R. Joyce, although challenged the day after his nomination, had persistently refused to meet him on the stump. There were usually three reasons, said Mr. Kitchin, why a man avoided a joint discussion in a political campaign: First, he wants to make false charges which can be answered; secondly, he does not want to hear charges made which are true and cannot be answered, or thirdly, he is afraid for his people to hear a Democrat speak. Mr. Joyce was probably actuated by all three reasons.

Mr. Kitchin stated that he would not discuss State issues; that he considered the race issue settled, and settled properly. However, he warned his supporters that all the negroes in this district who had been allowed to register would be found voting for McKinley and Joyce next Tuesday.

The issue was plainly drawn, declared the speaker, between McKinleyism and Bryanism, between the trusts and the people. He followed with a strong argument against trusts, showing that McKinley's administration hadbeen run in their interests In 1888 and 1892 the National Republican platforms had denounced trusts in strong terms. In 1896 all reference to trusts was carefully omitted, and in 1900 the Republican National chairman is declaring that there are no trusts.

Mr. Kitchin spoke of the tendency of the trusts to crush all competition and oppress the people, using the American Tobacco Company as an illustration, because the operations of this giant octopus were familiar to the people of this section. The managers of this trust, the Dukes of Durham, are fighting Mr. Kitchin because they know he is the open and avowed enemy of all illegal combinations. They are supporting Mr. Joyce and working for his election because they know that, in the event of his election, he would be their willing and obedient servant.

Mr. Kitchin took up and annihilated the "prosperity" and "full dinner pail" arguments of the hungry and never-satisfied Republican pie-hunters. He declared that, while a certain kind of prosperity had followed the reaction of the panic of 1893 and the Spanish-American war, there was nothing permanent in it. The dinner pail argument, he said, was an insult to the intelligence of the American manhood.

The speaker devoted considerable time to a discussion of the question of imperialism, which, he declared, had been planted in our government by McKinley and the Republican party. His arraignment of McKinley's weak and vascillating spirit in dealing with all great questions was very strong.

In concluding Mr. Kitchin spoke briefly of his acts since he had been the representative of the people of this district in the House of Representatives. He had always voted and acted,

STATEMENT OF FACTS.

Dr. Beall and Dr. Lewis Correct False Impressions and Give the Health Condition at the State Normal and Industrial College.

The following statement is self-explanatory:

In view of the fact that exaggerat d rumors are being circulated relative to the sickness at the State Normal and Industrial College, I deem it proper to make the following statement of the actual conditions existing today:

We have three cases of typhoid fever, all of them exceedingly mild in character and all contracted before the patients left their homes, as no one of them had been at the College two weeks when she was taken sick. There are, besides these, seven cases of malarial fever. Three of these are without temperature today, and are sitting up, leaving seven students confined to bed.

I trust that this will correct the misapprehension in regard to the sickness at this institution.

W. P. BEALL, M. D.

October 30.

Dr. R. H. Lewis, Secretary of the State Board of Health, after consultation concurs with Dr. Beall as to the origin of the fever. It is not surprising that the general public should have become alarmed at the announcement that there was typhoid fever at the State Normal and Industrial College. Il is to be hoped, however, that the greatly exaggerated statements resulting from this announcement may not do unnecessary damage to the College and unnecessarily alarm the parents of the students.

The large number of students attending the State fair at Raleigh last week and the Winston fair this week has led some people to the hasty conclusion that all the departures from the College have been on account of the fever scare. There has been no panic at the College.

Nothing has been concealed from the students nor from their parents, as the following statement made last Friday morning, and sent by the students to their parents, will show:

"October 26, 1900: A statement to the students.—Last night Dr. W. P. Beall, our regular physician, and Dr. W. J. Richardson, consulting physician, informed me that Miss Hackett, of Wilkesboro, and Miss Hardee, of Greene county, have typhoid fever. Both of these young ladies were taken sick about two weeks after arriving at the College, that is, about one week ago.

"Miss Hackett's father is here and informs me that there have recently been a number of cases of fever in the neighborhood of his home. I have also just been informed that Miss Hardee had two or three chills, and had been taking medicine to ward off others before she left home.

"Both of the physicians believe that infection in each of these cases was brought with the student from her home. Mr. Hackett, who is here, concurs in this opinion as to his own daughter.

"It should be remembered that the College opened only three weeks ago yesterday.

"It should also be remembered that about three hundred students were at the College from February 1st to the last of June, and that there was no case of typhoid or malarial fever during that entire time. It does not seem psobable that there is, therefore, any local cause for the occurrence of these cases of fever anly two weeks after the arrival of the students.

"I am glad to say that Miss Reinhardt, who was taken with typhoid fever the day she arrived, is improving rapidly and will probably be able to go home next week.

"No effort has been made and none will be made to persuade any student to remain here if she or her people are afraid of the conditions surrounding her.

"The physicians do not think that there is any reason why a student in good health should leave the College for fear of contracting the disease here.

Very truly yours,
"CHARLES D. MCIVER, President."

President McIver stated this afternoon that the health conditions are improving daily.

JARVIS PRAISES SIMMONS.

TAKES NO PART IN CONTROVERSY.

In Reply to a Letter Asking Information as to Simmons' Character, He Says There is Nothing Against it—Friend to Both Simmons and Carr—A Friend of Ransom Maintains that the ex-Senator is for Carr.

Special Correspondence of The Telegram.

Raleigh, Oct. 30.—Ex-Senator Jarvis has written a letter in reply to a question regarding Mr. Simmons' character in which he speaks in the highest terms of Chairman Simmons, and says any attacks upon him are unjust. He says he thinks highly of the primary system for selecting Senators. He speaks highly of Mr. Simmons' character but does not express any preference between the two candidates. Gov. Jarvis says:

I was warmly in favor of this primary. I believed it the fair way to select a senator. I am, therefore, grieved at the bitterness and personal attacks that have been engendered. Both Mr. Simmons and Mr. Carr are men of standing and character in the State. No good can come of tearing either down. Both are my personal and political friends, and I am not taking any part in their contest, but I appeal to the partisans of each to cease all attacks upon the other.

G. S. Arthur, who is manager of the Biltmore exhibit at the fairs, says he will next year at the State fair here show 30 varities of Irish potatoes, some grown from the cut plantings, some from the whole potato. The Biltmore farm exhibit is a liberal education in agriculture, so to speak.

Six convicts from Cumberland county were yesterday brought to the penitentiary.

There were a thousand Democrats at Smithfield yesterday at the trial or rather preliminary hearing of Past Grand Master Richard J. Noble, and the fifty other democrats charged with assaulting and intimidating Masonry. Two of the crowd had on red shirts. Two United States commissioners, J. D. Parker, of Smithfield, and John Nichols, sat in hearing, though no law was shown for the presence of two. James H. Pou made a stirring speech for the defence. The prosecution was made by Oscar Spears, who was sent by district attorney Bernard, and by ex-judge Thomas Sutton, of Fayetteville.

There is of course much talk here today about the rumor, coming from Greensboro, that Ransom, Jarvis and Waddell would come out for Carr for the Senate. Your correspondent talked with a close friend of Ransom who said he knew the latter was for Carr and had for some time expected such a declaration. He said the senator did not like it because Chairman Simmons did not two years ago ask him to speak in the campaign. The same gentleman then spoke of Waddell, saying he felt sure the latter would be neutral, and that whatever his predilections might be, he would remain silent. A warm personal friend of Simmons said that he knew that Jarvis and Waddell had expressed themselves as favoring Simmons. He said he expected Jarvis would say so in a card and he expressed no surprise at hearing that Ransom would declare for Carr, saying he knew he favored him.

Junius Davis, Esq., of Wilmington, is here to attend the Supreme Court. He tells me that he is informed Carr will get 500 votes in New Hanover.

Bids are invited for putting in plumbing, including 1000 feet of sewer pipe, at the Soldiers' Home. It is 1000 feet from the Home to the nearest line of sewer.

Here is an interesting comparison between the school population in 1888 and 1898. In 1888 it was, white, 363,982; colored, 216,837. In 1898 it was white, 415,262; colored, 218,218. The increase of whites in the two years was 51,280, and the decrease of colored 3,619.

Secretary Bruner, of the agricultural department, speaking about the "Hall of History" in the State museum, which will next year be furnished and in which it is proposed to gather a great collection of objects relating to the history of North Carolina, said today that it was the desire to begin with a model of Fort Raleigh on Roanoke island, and to come up to the present date.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Director of the Census Merriman today made public the census figures. The population of the United States is 76,295,220.

MISREPRESENTATIONS CORRECTED.

Mr. Hay Watson Smith Did Not Withdraw From the Presbyterian Church as a Protest Against the Confession of Faith.

In the Charlotte Observer of yesterday morning there was a letter from Rev. Hay Watson Smith correcting certain misrepresentations that some time ago appeared in the Observer and other papers. The published report that his withdrawal from the Presbyterian church was "as a protest against the Westminister Confession of Faith," Mr. Smith pronounces "a complete falsification of his position."

The Greensboro people, knowing Mr. Smith personally, and knowing also his family and training, have never doubted his sincerity as a Christian or his soundness in all essentials of the Christian faith.

ANOTHER CARR CLUB.

High Point Democrats Organize With a Membership of 123.

An enthusiastic Carr Democratic Club was organized in High Point last night. Notwithstanding the fact that the meeting was held in the open air, 123 Democrats joined the club. Mr. A. J. Dodameade was elected president.

Mayor Taylor went up from Greensboro and addressed the meeting, speaking from the porch of the Jarrelle Hotel. He made a splendid speech and was vigorously applauded. Mr. Dodameade also made a short speech.

Jarvis and Waddell Keeping Mum.

The Greensboro correspondent of the Charlotte Observer sent that paper, Sunday night, a dispatch to the effect that it was reported that both ex-Senator Jarvis and Col. Waddell would support Carr for Senator. Mr. C. M. Busbee, Mr. Simmons' campaign manager, yesterday wired these gentlemen in regard to the matter and received the following replies, both of which are non-committal:

"Wilmington, N. C, Oct. 29, 1900.
"C. M. Busbee, Raleigh, N. C.

"Statement wholly unauthorized. My position is stated in my card of withdrawal.

"A. M. WADDELL."

"Greenville, N. C., Oct. 29, 1900.
"C. M. Busbee, Raleigh, N. C.

"Telegram received. I am taking no part in Senatorial contest. It is not accurate to put me down as supporting either of the gentlemen.

"THOS. J. JARVIS."

Greensboro Firm Gets Medal.

The Southern Import and Commission Company, who made an exhibit at the Raleigh Fair, was awarded two gold medals, one for the best exhibit of Southern made carpets and the other for best exhibit of carpets, rugs, matting and oilcloths.

During the Fair our Raleigh correspondent made mention of the fact that this exhibit was receiving favorable comment.

While there Mr. J. S. Kuykendall, who had charge of the exhibit, got out a neat souvenir card of the Raleigh Fair and incidentally advertised our own Fair, to be held in 1901:

We will all Remember the Great Fair in Raleigh, and Come Again.

Several Conversions Last Night.

The revival at Spring Garden street chapel is still in progress and much good is being accomplished. Rev. Mr. Holcomb preached last night from the text, "Without God and without hope in the World." Three or four people professed religion before the close of the service.

There will be preaching again this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The public is cordially invited.

THE STORY OF THE BIG FIRE.

NUMBER OF LOST ESTIMATED AT 32.

The Defective Insulation of Electric Light Wires Caused the Fire and Nitro-glycerine Was the Explosive—A Number of People Thought to be Penned Under the Sidewalk Which is Covered With Debris.

By Wire to The Telegram.

New York, Oct. 30.—The defective insulation of electric light wires caused the great fire yesterday. The body of one woman was taken out this morning. A number of employees are thought to be penned in the vaults under the sidewalks. A big pile of debris is on top, and efforts to signal them have so far failed.

It is thought that the explosion was that of nitro glycerine.

The number now missing is estimated at thirty-two. All but two of the Tarrant's employees are accounted for.

LAST NIGHT'S REPORT.

New York, Oct. 29.—The long list of fire horrors that have occurred in and around the city of New York, a list that includes the Royal Hotel fire, the Park Place disaster and the Windsor and Hobcken fires, was added to today, by a fire and explosion that shook the lower end of Manhattan like an earthquake, hurled a seven-story building into the air and set fire to two blocks of buildings, with a loss of life that only the efforts of the hundreds of men who were rushed to the work of digging away the ruins as soon as the fire was extinguished, will reveal. The big building of Tarrant & Co., makers of medicinal specialties, standing at the northwest corner of Greenwich and Warren streets, and filled with chemicals, took fire in some way that may never be known, at about a quarter after 12 o'clock this afternoon.

The force of the explosion tore away the walls of the commission store houses fronting on Washington street and caused them to collapse, falling all at once in a mass, and flames burst out from the Tarrant building and caught the wreck. The explosion demolished windows and wooden structures about it. In a moment Warren street was choked up with a mass of debris and the whole place was aflame. The great explosion was followed by half a dozen more or less intense, and by a countless number of smaller ones. By this time the fire apparatus was arriving from every diredtion. Deputy Chief Ahern came about two minutes after the second explosion, and he at once ordered a fifth alarm sent out, followed by a general call for ambulances. The explosion and fire together had now assumed the proportions of a great catastrophe and it was at first thought that hundreds of lives had been lost. Throngs of people were rushing about in the nearby streets, many of them panic-stricken, fleeing from the fire. They mingled in the crowd that was rushing down from Broadway to see what had happened. Half an hour after the explosion the streets for blocks around the fire were crowded with fire apparatus with a score of ambulances, while hundreds of police were being rushed from all the lower precincts of the city to form lines, and many priests from near-by parishes were going here and there in the smoke-obscured thoroughfares seeking for injured who might need their aid. From the burning districts a column of smoke was rising high in the air, mingled with flames that could not be controlled by hundreds of streams thrown upon them.

The second explosion carried destruction in every direction. That it did not cause a wholesale loss of life was due to the fact that almost ten minutes' warning came after the first cry of fire—a cry that was a real warning to people who knew the character of the chemical in the burning building—and fully five minutes occurred between the first and second explosions. Just after the outbreak of fire from the windows of the building a down-town train stopped at the Warren street station of the Ninth avenue elevated road. It passed on in time to escape the explosion and the few people who were left on the platform of the station are thought to have all escaped before the great explosion

WM. B. HOCKET WAS THE MAN

QUAKER WHO REFUSED TO FIGHT.

Many Friends Were Conscripted From This and Other Counties and Forced Into the Confederate Armies—The Conscript's own Account of the Occurrence Reported by Lansing—Wm. B. Hockett Yet Lives and can Verify All.

To the Editor of The Telegram:

The Rev. Dr. Betts in last Friday's Telegram, after quoting from S. B. Shaw and Lansing's Pictorial Field Book of the Civil War an account of how one of these Friends who refused to fight was ordered by his Colonel to be shot, among others, asks the following questions: "Who was that Captain? Who was that Colonel? Who was that meek conscript?" and calls on the old men of Guilford county, in the name of justice, to help him sift the matter.

Lansing's field book evidently intended to say Guilford county, North Carolina, instead of South Carolina. From my own personal knowledge there were many members of the Society of Friends, not only from Guilford, but Randolph and other counties in North Carolina who were conscripted and forced into the Confederate army, and attempts were made to force some of them into the ranks at Gettysburg, as well as at other places. But these men were conscientious in their scruples against war in any form or for any cause, and from the beginning to the end refused to fight, and steadily bore practical testimony to the strength of their principles, as is evidenced by the following extract from the journal of William B. Hockett, who was undoubtedly the "meek conscript" referred to.

"6th mo. (June) 24th, 1863. I was ordered out and required to fall in line with the company and drill, but I refused. They tried to make me, and I sat down on the ground. They reminded me of the orders to shoot me, but I told them my God said to fear not them that kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul; but rather to fear Him that is able to destroy both soul and body in hell. The company was then ordered to fall back eight paces, leaving me in front of them. They were then ordered by Colonel Kirkland to 'load, present arms, aim,' and their guns were pointed directly at my breast. I raised my arms and prayed: 'Father, forgive them; they know not what they do.'

"Not a gun was fired. They lowered them without orders, and some of the men were heard to say that they 'could not shoot such a man.' The order was then given 'ground arms.' The officers having consulted together, the Captain soon came to me with two men, bringing a gun and a cartridge-box with thirty rounds of ammunition. The captain said, 'now take these and join ranks.' Refusing to do so, the soldiers tied them on me and strapped the gun to my back, and the captain ordered me to rise and walk in drill; but I refused. An officer then swore he would ride over me and made many efforts to do so, but failed, for his horse could not be made to step on me. At one time he carefully placed his foot between my arm and my side without in the least injuring me. The captain struck me on the back of the head with the heavy end of a gun, and although I was stunned by the blow, I soon got over it and never felt it afterwards."

The above took place just a few days before the big battle at Gettysburg, where William B. Hockett and several other Friends were taken prisoners by the Federal army, and is only an instance of the many indignities suffered by them. To show his non-partisan spirit, I will make one other extract from Hockett's journal, made while a prisoner of war in Fort McHenry, Baltimore:

"7th mo. (July) 8th, 1863. This is a trying place for a civil man. Both Northern and Southern men contend that they are right, while in my opinion they were both wrong. The bitter oaths that are continually sounding in my ears are disgusting to me."

In giving the above facts the writer wishes to be understood as trying to do his duty in an earnest endeavor to throw light on the subject without prejudice, or intending to reflect on any one. I know well there were many good men in the South who did not approve of the severe treatment of the non-combatants, but were powerless to prevent it. In conclusion I will say that William B. Hockett is still living on his farm about twelve miles south of Greensboro, Guilford county. He has for some years been a recorded minister of the gospel in the Society of Friends. He is now in the evening of life and in feeble health, but is doing what his hands find to do, to hasten the day when righteousness shall reign on the earth, and the sound of battle shall no more be heard in any land, loved and "duly respected" by all who know him.

THE MAN IN OUR MIDST.

Dr. Chas. Roberson yesterday received some very uniquely bound books which he had ordered. They were all hand work, from the manufacture of the paper to the binding, which was calf skin with a fine velvety finish and pliable, after the manner of cover used for ministers' Bibles. The publishers' notes, announcements, etc., were done after the old style, and on the last page of each was the announcement that "The whole was done into a book by the Roycrofters at the Roycrofters' shop which is in East Chelsea."

"There's a whale of a sight of difference," said a man on the way home from the speaking last night," between preachin' and practicin'. Here was that young Congressman a givin' 'em Hail Columbia, on the right o' local self government, saying that it meant that the people o' Greensboro had a right to govern themselves but no right to govern the people o' High Pint, and at that very minute there was a lot o' folks, representin' the aggregation o' the city o' Greensboro, out at High Pint organizin' a Jule Carr club and so fur meddlin' in the affairs o' the High Pint people. No, siree, local self government won't do always."

People of Greensboro may be given an opportunity to hear the "Rebel Yell," that terrorizing expression of pent up enthusiasm and determination which was at once the token of victory and a means of inspiring it. The Rebel Yell was not a war hoop, because it carried no savagery. It was the climax of martial music, because it accomplished best of all the purpose of all martial music—inspiration to the men, and more than that, terror to the enemy. After the old men who, under its potent influence, mounted the breast works, have passed beyond, this generation will know nothing of the Rebel Yell. So if one may have the opportunity to hear but its echo he should not miss it. Mr. Walter Greene proposes that a number of old veterans shall assemble in the court house Thursday night with the Carr Club and give the yell. Away with your bands, your stringed instruments and all else; give us of all things the Rebel Yell. Let it be given yet a few more times while the Confederate soldier is with us.

Will Push Coogler to Keep up.

Charlotte Observer.

The Telegram confides to us the fact that the senatorial Campaign Song of which we gave a sample Thursday, was written by the poet laureate of Greensboro, who stood up, in his proper person, in the Carr meeting there, Thursday night, and sang it through. Our contemporary gives it to be understood that all envy was hushed and turned into admiration, and that the rendition was hailed with salvos of applause. Such stanzas as The Observer gave arrested the attention of The Spartanburg Herald, which has the candor to say that they cause it to tremble for the primacy, in the realm of Southern poesy, of J. Gordon Coogler, the poet laureate of South Carolina. If The Spartanburg Herald has the shakes on account of what it has seen of this Song, we should just like to know how it will feel after reading the two following stanzas (the reader will please note the fine scorn in the first):

We want no puckery persimmon
That grows near the Hatteras bar;
They grease when they start to go
"swimmin'";
But their heels always stick to the tar.

Then rally, ye sons of Carr-olina,
From mountains to Ocracoke bar,
And shout like the thunders of Sinai,
For Senator General Jule Carr.

It may be that Coogler can beat that—we make no boast—but it will push him to do it.

THE MAKING OF A CONGRESSMAN

It is a standing subject of comment that the States which less often change their representatives in Congress have the most influential men in that body. This is because these men hold their positions long enough to give years of study and consideration to public questions and are not shifted for new ones just about the time they have learned to walk up the capitol steps without trepidation. The only way a State may expect to have an influential delegation is to follow, for instance, the example of Maine, and select able, honest men, and keep them there till they become powerful through natural ability reinforced by study and experience. No man may expect to put his impress upon legislation when he walks in one door and out at the other without stopping long enough to become acclimated. By the method of politics which limits a Congressman's career to one, two or three terms, making him put forth more effort for his re-election for even that short time than for the mastering of any public question, the South has been cheated out of its proper weight in national legislation. Of course geographical position is against us, but it may be said that no one or two term man will ever be the chairman of a committee that shapes important legislation.

Here is our present representative, Mr. W. W. Kitchin. He is young and an exceptionably vigorous man, both physically and mentally, and in that respect fully capable of becoming, by years of labor and opportunity, an influential factor in the national legislature. He is more. He is absolutely honest and incorruptible. No lease of power can corrupt him or cause him to forget the interests of the people he represents. What more could be wanted? He is thoroughly democratic in the very best sense of the word. What more could one get in shifting him off for a green hand at the end of his six years upon which he is about to enter? In him there is both integrity and ability. He has been in Congress long enough to begin to be really useful. He is not a time server and unless all indications are deceptive, could never become so. We are not writing this in behalf of Mr. Kitchin. It can do him no good. His election is assured and long before another election, what we are saying will have been forgotten. But we are speaking in the interest of the district, which will never have its proper weight in Congress if it swaps horses every time a trade is proposed.

We note that Col. Dockery, who made a red hot silver campaign in 1896 and charged that the whole Republican party but himself had deserted silver, is now doing as the old fellow usually does, bringing up the tail end of the procession, by declaring in his canvass for Congress in the Sixth District that he was all wrong then.

How are the mighty fallen! The senatorial discussion has caused Col. Webster to fish up files of the Fayetteville Observer of some six or eight years ago in which Col. Hale was then giving the free silver idea "down the country."

W. R. Henry is great on boxing the political compass. He always boxes in the direction of pie.

There has been much said about the right to vote. The New York Times varies the monotony by discussing the right not to vote.

THE STORY OF THE BIG FIRE.

came. The station-master fled across the structure carrying with him the receipts of the day and his unused tickets, while two women, who had stopped on the platform to watch the fire, frightened by the first explosion, fled down the down-town tracks, assisted by the station porter, who took them to the Barclay street station in safety. The explosion completely carried away the station and the mass of masonry that fell with it broke through the flooring and almost demolished the structure just below this building.

Outside of a few who were injured in the streets, the loss of life by the fire and explosion must have occurred in the Tarrant building mainly, and possibly in the other buildings destroyed by fire. The number of persons in the Tarrant building was estimated to be in the neighborhood of 50. It is said that there were 45 employes and it is thought they got out with the exception of one. People who saw the fire declared, however, that more must have been lost. How many of the girls and other employes escaped could not be even guessed tonight, although a large number of missing persons indicated that there were some. It is said that half of the employes were out getting lunch. A rumor went around that a boy had been seen at one of the near-by restaurants getting lunches for fifteen girls who were waiting in the building.

As the result, a dozen buildings were blown down and a score of others were damaged. The loss of life is not known, but from all sources of information it is gathered that there are perhaps the bodies of 30 persons in the ruins, though because of the hot debris and the slowness of the moving of it, no body had been removed up to midnight. The disaster was one of the most terrible that has ever occurred in this city and rivals the Windsor Hotel fire in its appalling results, though in loss of property it will be worse. Chief Croker, of the fire department, said tonight that the loss is fully $1,500,000. The action of the tremendous catastrophe was more vivid and awful than the city has seen for a long time. Buildings fell in on themselves or toppled over on others, iron girders were thrown yards away, smashing through great walls, whole structures fell into the streets in piles so that the line of thoroughfare could not be marked out, huge splinters of iron, steel and wood were flying into the streets and into the buildings, clean through the walls, where they buried men and women. People walking through the streets were knocked down and dangerously injured by timbers, glass and steel, horses were thrown down, wagons, windows, store fronts and all sorts of property for blocks in every direction were wrecked and damaged. There were 35 persons reported missing and 100 men, women and children are on the list of the injured. Search for bodies is going on and will be continued all night. Chief Croker said tonight that no firemen had perished in the fire, all his men having been accounted for.

and conscience, Once he had been he said, according to his judgment compelled to go against the wishes of a large number of good women and preachers. That was in connection with the case of Congressman-elect Roberts, the Utah bigamist, who was not allowed to take his seat. Mr. Kitchin voted to seat him in order that he might then be expelled, believing this to have been the constitutional way of proceeding.

MAY PREVENT EXPLOSIONS.

Portable Electric Lamps to Be Introduced in Mining Operations to Succeed Present Oil One.

Old miners in England claim that they can always detect the presence of gas more quickly in their working places with a candle than with the ordinary safety lamp, and that they can always clear it off in a few minutes by fanning with their coats, the candle standing on the ground meanwhile, out of harm's way, the gas collecting near the roof. But mines are very different now from what they were in the typical old collier's days. Explosions in those days, when they did take place, were only local and did little harm beyond burning the clothes and skin of those near. In these days an explosion often means the loss of hundreds of lives and the wrecking of the mine, so that though many collieries are still worked by naked lights, either candles or small oil lamps, the number is becoming less every year, the pressure of mining inspectors being constantly directed to the adoption of safety lamps.

But the ordinary oil-burning safety lamp gives but a poor light, and it must not be used in any position much out of the vertical or it goes out, and, moreover, it is not a perfect safety lamp in the proper sense of the term, inasmuch as any one of the numerous forms will become red-hot and explode if it is exposed to a sufficiently powerful current of an explosive gaseous mixture for a sufficient time. Hence great efforts have been made to develop a portable electric lamp, which shall take the place of the present safety lamp at the face of the coal and in those parts of the mine where it is not considered safe to use lamps from the ordinary electric service.

LESSON IN CHINESE WORDS.

Here Is an Easy Rule by Which They May Be Pronounced Correctly.

If a few simple rules are observed Chinese words are not difficult to pronounce. A always about as a in far; e always approximately as e in they; i very like i in the machine or pin, and u always as the u of rule. Every syllable has an independent value, and should be given that value in pronunciation. As for consonants, they are pronounced exactly as written. These three rules will secure as correct a pronunciation of Chinese names as can be secured without oral instruction, says the Chicago Chronicle.

For example, under the first rule, one would say tah-koo for Taku, not take-you, as one may frequently hear the word pronounced; lee-hoong-chaang for Li Hung Chang, not lie-hung-chang; peh-king for Peking, not peek-in; shahng-hah-ee for Shanghai, not shang-high; tsoong-le-yahmen for tsung-li-yamen, not tsunglie yamen, and so on. Under the second rule Tientsin is pronounced teeyentsinn, accenting the yen syllable, not teentsin. Yunnan-fu is yoo-nahn-foo, not ynan-fyu. In like manner all words are pronounced with syllable distinctness and with uniform vowel sound. Under the third rule the province name Szechuan is sounded not zekuan, but nearly as zeh-choo-ahn, touching the choo very lightly; Liautong peninsula is li-hoo-tong.

SPOONS FROM EVERY HOTEL.

A Housekeeper's Fad That Astonished a Party of Roaming Bicyclists of Chicago.

In the northwestern part of Chicago is a little farm, removed from the main road over which the trolley cars rumble, and almost hidden by wide clover fields, says the Tribune of that city. It is not a regular stopping place for anyone going by on the main road, for no one would suspect that anything like civilization lurked among the tall weeds on that prairie.

Purely by accident some bicyclists stopped near the farmhouse, a little, tumble-down structure with a dilapidated shed attached to it, owing to a bicycle mishap to one of the party. Inquiry for a drink of water brought to earth some of the most peculiar artificial well water ever drank by mortal man, but the surprise came when some honey was brought out. The spoons offered to the party were undoubtedly silver, and of the best. They bore the inscription of all the big hotels of the city, including the Grand Pacific, Palmer house, Tremont, Revere and a number of others.

Some one suggested that they were souvenir spoons, but just how they came to be where they were discovered by the bicycling party is a mystery.

Gentle Sarcasm on Athletics.

With reference to the deification of the athlete at public schools, the Oxford Magazine has the following: "It appears that a few days back the vice chancellor received the following letter from a gentleman: 'How much would I have to pay for the education of my son in your university? Let me know if I shall have to pay more in case my son, besides rowing, should wish to learn to read and write.'"

HEALTHY BECAUSE CLEAN.

Mountain Air Is of the Same Chemical Composition as Low Air, But Is Purer.

The only reason why mountain air is healthier than low air is that mountain air is cleaner than low air. The chemical composition of the atmosphere differs but little, if at all, wherever the sample is taken. On Pike's peak the relation of oxygen to nitrogen and other constituents of the atmosphere is the same as at the level of the ocean. The favorable effects, therefore, of a change of air are not to be explained by any difference in the proportion of its gaseous constituents. One important difference, however, is the bacteriological one. The air of high altitudes contains no microbes, and is, in fact, sterile, while near the ground and some 100 feet above it microbes are abundant.

In the air of Chicago and other crowded places, says the Chronicle, not only does the microbe impurity increase, but other impurities, such as the poducts of combustion of coal, accrue also. Several investigators have found traces of hydrogen and certain hydrocarbons in the air, and especially in the air of pine, oak and birch forests. It is to these bodies, doubtless consisting of traces of essential oils, to which the curative effects of certain health resorts are ascribed. Thus the locality of a fir forest is said to give relief in diseases of the respiratory tract. But all the same, these tracts of essential oils and aromatic products must be counted, strictly speaking, as impurities, since they are not apparently necessary constituents of the air. As recent analyses have shown, these bodies tend to disappear in the air as a higher altitude is reached, until they disappear altogether.

The absconder Alvord, who was arrested yesterday, on the charge of having stolen $700,000 from the First National Bank, of New York, was arrainged in the Centre police court this morning. There was delay caused by the question of jurisdiction and the p isoner was remanded.

IMPORTANT!

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 26th, 1900.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS:

On and after October 15th, 1900, we, the undersigned, will do a strictly cash business. Our reasons are as follows:

1st. Absolute NECESSITY.

2nd. Laundry, the world over, is a recognized cash business and justly so.

3rd. Our accounts are necessarily small, and it causes an endless amount of confusion and expense to collect, besides losses each year in bad bills.

4th. All of our current expenses, such as labor, fuel, gas and supplies are cash, hence the stand we take is forced upon us. While we very much regret, in most cases, to exact the spot cash, yet we must treat all alike, and we see no other way out of the difficulty. We trust our customers will lend us their aid by stating when to return laundry and by being prepared to pay for same when delivered. Our drivers will have positive instructions to return to the laundry all packages not paid for.

We have on sale at office (for cash) coupon books from $1 to $5 which can be left at convenient place at home, so that on delivery of bundle the amount of laundry bill can be torn out by the driver.

A VOICE FROM JAIL.

Mr. Honeycutt Says He is Innocent, and Gives the True Version of the Incident Between Himself, Mr. Street and the Whiskey Barrel.

The Telegram is in receipt of the following letter, which is self explanatory, and which we give as written.

Statesville, N. C., Oct. 27, 1900.—Spec al to the Greensboro tillegrpham Gentlemen & Ladies & Friends one an all, will you allow me a Short Space in yonr column.

I am heare under a 4 year Sentence, whitch I have been in jail about 11 months whitch I wase charged with an assalt upon a Revenue officer. So when I was brought into the court on the 18 of this month the court seen at once that I done what I did to save my own life. So the case was nol Prossed at once and thrown out of court. So then to Make a Sure thing to get me in the Penitentiary. they brought in George Burlson, a thief who had Just got Back form the Penitentiary. he was sent there for Steeling. which he acknowledged on the witness stand. So Burlson. was brought in to court. and he swore. that. he seen Me let Gilbert Street. have a Empty Barrel. with a Stamp on it. whitch I did not and God in heaven Knows to day. that I did not for the whiskey Barrel was already Gilbert Streets. whitch Street left at my place. & then Some time after that Street sent Burlson to my place after the Barrell. So I Set the Barrel out in the yard. I made a cross mark on the Stamp with my knife before it went off to disfiger the Stamp so it could not beused any more. So as to me having anything elce to do with the Barrell .I am as clear as an angel in heaven today.

And now to show you all that I am clear of the charge. the witness George Burlson come to the jail at this place the same evening after the trial & acknowledged in the Presence of J. G. Johnson. the Jailer & 3 or 4 other good men that he swore false against Me about the Barrell & said that Gilbert Street who was also a witness aganst me had got him to swear that against me & Burlson said he was sorry that he had swore what he did.

So I will not ask anyone to take my word Just ask Mr. J. G. thompson, the Jailer at this Place. & other good men. here. so it looks very hard for me to have to be sent off from my little children for something that I never thought of doing no never. but I hope that God will let me live to get back home to my wife and little children. who is there in the mountains alone & almost on sufference. for my help at home, and no one to help them to anything. but I do hope that the good People will not let them suffer.

Yours Respectfully
WM. HONEYCUTT.

How He Got It.

From the Chicago Post.

"Did you ever get religion?" asked the revivalist.

"Well, I should say so—138 pounds of it," replied the man.

"A hundred and thirty-eight pounds of religion!" cried the revivalist "How did you get that?"

"The only way that a good many men ever get religion," was the reply. "I married it."

RESENTED THE COMPLIMENT.

British War Correspondent Who Did Not Think Churchill a Competent Judge.

The porch of the Bloemfontein club was a favorite meeting place for the notables engaged in the South African war while Lord Roberts' forces occupied the town. Here many discussions and a few quarrels took place, says a London paper. It was quite a sight to see the different little groups of men that assembled there every evening engaged in earnest conversation. One evening a group of well-known correspondents, among them Bennett Burleigh, were talking together, when Winston Churchill suddenly appeared on the scene and rushed up to Mr. Burleigh to congratulate him on that brilliant stroke of his in getting away from Ladysmith just at the right moment. He began by saying:

"Mr. Burleigh, that was the finest thing you have ever done in journalism in the whole of your life—it was simply great."

This was kindly meant, but, unluckily, it was one of those things that, as Punch used to say, "might have been expressed differently." By consequence it only nettled the great war correspondent, who replied:

"Boy! it is presumptuous in you to tell me what is the greatest thing I have done in my life—you, a lad, just beginning your career!"

CONVICTS IN PARLIAMENT.

There Have Been Many Members Who Have Served Terms in Prison.

Michael Davitt is the most conspicuous of the present members of the British parliament who have occupied seats in that body after having served terms of penal servitude, says the Chicago Chronicle. Mr. Davitt's term was 15 years. His experience is by no means exceptional. J. F. X. O'Brien, one of the members for Cork city, was in 1867 sentenced to be hanged, drawn and quartered, a sentence that was subsequently commuted to penal servitude for life. James O'Connor, who sits for West Wicklow, was condemned to seven years' penal servitude in 1865 and spent several years in convict prisons. In 1848 John Martin was removed from the dock in Green street courthouse, Dublin, to a penal cell in Newgate prison, preparatory to undergoing a sentence of ten years' transportation. Mr. Martin was afterward, from 1870 to 1875, member for Meath, and it was on his death in the latter year that Mr. Parnell stepped into parliament for the first time as his successor in the representation of Meath. Dr. Kevin Izod O'Doherty, who sat for North Meath for a little time after the 1885 election, was, like Mr. Martin, sentenced in 1848 to ten years' transportation.

PEAT IS A POPULAR FUEL.

The English People Find It Cheaper, Healthier and Cleaner Than Coal.

Peats beats coal. In open fireplaces where a steady heat and not a crackling blaze is wanted the old-fashioned bog blocks have merits not to be found in the best Wallsends. They are cheaper, healthier and give less trouble, says the London Daily Mail.

This does not mean that you can shut up your coal cellar, throw away your scuttle and boycott the coal merchant. The Durham and South Wales coal kings are still going to have dominion over us, but a timely use of peat may materially lessen the coming winter's coal bills.

Unfortunately, the bog owners and peat merchants have missed a great opportunity. There are enormous deposits available, especially in the north and in Ireland, deposits that only want digging and drying to make the finest fuel. But they must be dug and dried in the early summer. Autumn will soon be here, and no extra supplies have been prepared. The few peat merchants are already finding themselves flooded with orders which they will soon not know how to execute.

A considerable amount of peat is already burned in London, especially in the West End. People, after tours in Ireland or Scotland, get to love the fresh, earthy smell of the burning moss, and take care to secure supplies. Some doctors are fond of ordering it in place of coal, especially in the case of patients where quietness is an essential. You can make up your peat fire early in the morning or last thing at night by arranging half a dozen blocks, and then go away, knowing that it will keep burning for eight or ten hours to come.

GUIDED BY THE PULSE.

Chinese Doctors Pay Particular Attention to Their Patients' Pulsation.

The Chinese physicians, it is well known, have long had the credit of paying very particular attention to the pulse. They even pretend to derive a much more minute and accurate knowledge of the state of the sick from that source than European practitoners lay any claim to, says London Answers.

The patient is directed to be laid in bed, with his arms resting on a small cushion. The physician must be seated and both parties are enjoined to remain calm, silent and collected. The fingers are next to be applied in due succession, one after another, in order to judge of the compressibility of the artery.

The Chinese do not infer solely from the rapidity of the pulsations. Their mode is to compare the number of pulsations of the artery with the intervals of the respiration of the patient. The number of pulsations of a man in moderate health they consider in relation to the time of a natural inspiration and expiration. Four beats of the pulse during this period they consider as indicating perfect health. If it exceeds five pulsations it is considered as too quick; if under that number it is too slow respecting good health. It is required to reckon 50 pulsations in order to form a correct indication. Their chief divisions of the pulse are four, the superficial, the profound, the quick and the slow. These they consider as having relation to the four temperaments, the choleric, the sanguine, the phlegmatic and the melancholy.

CITY MAY BUY COAL MINES.

English Municipality May in the Near Future Solve the Cheap Fuel Problem.

In 1903 Manchester citizens may work a colliery, says the London Mail. Why not? If the victim of inexorable demand notes may be a washhouse proprietor, own a park, run his own tramcars, supply himself with water and draw illumination from his own mains—and all at a profit—surely he may go deeper afield and annex the bowels of the earth.

Thus argued a member of the Manchester corporation gas committee. Taking his cue from a wise Glaswegian he has bidden his colleagues to consider the question for a month. He has drawn a veil of anonimity around his plan, and until the officials have had time to prepare it means to keep it as dark as a coal mine.

This year the Manchester city gasworks will use 500,000 tons of coal and cannel. Already the increasing cost of it has sent gas up three pence per 1,000 cubic feet. Of the extra 500,000 times five shillings, say 60 per cent. is clear profit to the mine owner. But coal is dearer as gas is costlier, and the contribution of £50,000 a year to the city rates out of gas gain is in jeopardy, all of which need not have been if the Manchester rate payer could have been digging his own coal as well as making his own light.

Those who are of the corporation predict that the project will come to fruition and special bargains in coal mines are being looked for. The chief rock of offense will be that colliery exploitation is too hazardous and speculative a business for the public to touch. To which the answer is that when you buy coal you pay for all mining risks, and that citizens' pits producing 10,000 tons a week would provide their own insurance.
